A New Chapter in a Timeless Story

From the historic lanes of Prayagraj, where culture, cuisine, and community intertwine, emerges Veggie Veg — a soulful extension of the El Chico legacy. Born from a dream in the '60s when Ganesh Roy returned from his global travels to bring world flavours to Allahabad, El Chico has stood as a symbol of evolving taste rooted in heritage.

Decades later, Veggie Veg carries that spirit forward with a green conscience, bringing India's favourite comfort foods — from spicy chaats to South Indian staples, Chinese delights and continental classics — under one menu. As you flip through the pages, we also give you a glimpse into the soul of this magnificent city of Prayagraj (erstwhile Allahbad). So, whether you're a traveller seeking flavours by the Sangam, a local craving nostalgia, or a foodie with a curious palate, Veggie Veg promises joy on every table.

शुपा

In ancient India, "supa" refers to a thin, liquid dish, often a lentil-based soup or broth. It's considered a significant part of the Indian culinary tradition and is mentioned in various ancient texts, including the Charaka Samhita, which lists recipes for healthy living.

ਭਾਗੀਪੁਰਣਾ ਰੀ

The Kumbh Mela, held at the sacred Triveni Sangam in Prayagraj, is not just a religious gathering—it is a cosmic celebration of faith, spirituality, and timeless tradition. The Sangam, where the Ganga, Yamuna, and the mystical Saraswati meet, is considered the holiest confluence in Hindu belief.

Held once every twelve years, the Prayagraj Kumbh is the largest peaceful congregation on Earth. Saints, seers, ascetics, and devotees converge to partake in this divine ritual, transforming the city into a spiritual epicenter. At the heart of the Kumbh lies the idea of surrender, devotion, and union—with the self, with the divine, and with the eternal rhythm of the universe.

इवटरदे वशीइ, निरिंग इतरगेइ

Prayagraj, a city steeped in spirituality, is home to an enduring tradition of ashrams, mutts, and akhaadas that line the banks of the Ganga. In Jhunsi, the walls of ashrams like Shiv Ganga and the historically revered Rishi Durvasa Ashram come alive with vivid street art and mural paintings.

These visual narratives portray tales of ancient rishis, yogic discipline, mythological divinities, and the cultural soul of Sanatan dharma. Far from being mere decoration, the art here becomes a canvas of living heritage—where stories flow as freely as the Ganga herself, bridging past and present through brushstrokes of devotion.

In the vibrant lanes of Allahabad— now Prayagraj, art breathes life into brick and stone. Among the most striking expressions of public art are murals paying homage to literary legend Harivansh Rai Bachchan and the iconic Amitabh Bachchan. Painted with reverence and rooted in local pride, these artworks do more than beautify urban spaces—they preserve memory and ignite inspiration.

Prayagraj's vibrant soul is best savoured through its bustling streets, where food isn't just a necessity—it's a celebration. From the iconic Chaat Gali near Loknath to the timeless charm of Civil Lines stalls, the city is a haven for street food lovers. Must-try delights include Tamatar Chaat, Kachori-Sabzi, Dahi Jalebi, and Baati-Chokha—each with a unique twist rooted in tradition. Don't miss the frothy Malai Makhan in winter or the Kulhad Wali Lassi on a hot afternoon. In Prayagraj, every corner whispers a recipe and every bite tells a story.

The background of the image is a dark, atmospheric night scene. It appears to be a city at night, with numerous small, bright lights scattered across the upper half, possibly representing buildings or streetlights. The lower half of the image shows a body of water, likely a river or a lake, which reflects the lights from the city. The reflections are blurred and shimmering, creating a sense of movement and depth. The overall color palette is dominated by dark blues, blacks, and the warm, golden-yellow glow of the city lights.
